Novel Plan to Celebrate Columbus Day, Advertise Bridgeport and Make Rogers Council Famous.

Grand Knight Daniel P. Harrigan of John F. Rogers Council, K. of C., has organized a novel plan for the celebration of Columbus Day, Oct. 12, which will be observed as a local holiday in four States, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania.

The message will be passed from council to council and the one making the best time will receive a suitable prize.

ASSASSIN CRIES "SEND ME TO GIBBET!"

Slayer of English Government Official Predicts Uprising of Indians Against British Rule.

He Is a Medical Student and Claims He Made the Statement to Show People of America Justice of His Cause.

(Special from United Press.) London, July 10.—Madar Ad Dhingra, the Madras, India, youth who murdered Sir William Curzon Wyllie, and Dr. Cavas Lalcaica and wounded Sir Leslie Probyn at the Imperial Institute on the night of July 1, was arraigned for commitment to-day. For the first time since his triple crime the youth, who slow as a member of an Indian revolutionary society, made a public statement in which he prophesied an outbreak among the native tribes of India against the rule of England.

"I wish the English people would sentence me to the gibbet and kill me there," he shouted, "for then would the vengeance of my countrymen be the keener when the outbreak does come."

Dhingra added that he made this statement to show to the people of America the justice of his cause. It was at a lecture given by Sir Alfred Lyall that Dhingra, who was a 20 year old medical student, killed Wyllie who had been a political adviser to the government of India and was regarded as one of the best posted men in Indian affairs. Lalcaica was killed and Sir Leslie Probyn shot while trying to arrest the Indian revolutionist.

Dhingra was to-day committed to jail without bail, to await his trial.

To Investigate Death

Mother of Lieutenant Sutton Does Not Believe He Committed Suicide, But Was Shot by Fellow Officer.

(Special from United Press.) Washington, July 10.—A thorough investigation of the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton in October, 1908, will be insisted on by the dead man's mother. She has retained E. W. Vanduyke of this city as counsel to represent her before the new board of inquiry which will meet at the naval academy on July 12. He believes he will be able to demonstrate conclusively that the young man did not commit suicide as found by the original board, but that he was shot by a fellow officer. He will make an effort to bring before the board as a witness a young woman whose home is in Pittsburgh, concerning whom the trouble between Sutton and his companions on the fatal night, said to have arisen. The testimony before the original board has never been published. Vanduyke however, has had access to it to-day he says it is most conflicting.

"The accounts of the tragedy given by Lieutenants Adams, Utley and Roelker, and Sergeant Hart, are widely at variance," he said, "that it is impossible to reconcile any two of the versions. All testified however, that several shots were fired by Sutton; that Adams was hit, and the latter in the breast as a result of which he fell, dazed, though it subsequently transpired that he did not penetrate and that he was uninjured; that Lieutenant Adams rushed in and grappled with Sutton and threw him to the ground; that Lieutenants Willing and Bevan testified that when they arrived, immediately afterward the participants were all on the ground in a confused manner; that Adams was on Lieutenant Sutton's back while Lieutenant Adams was holding up Sutton's head and punching him with his fist. The testimony that when Lieutenant Bevan ordered Lieutenant Adams to desist, the latter obeyed and rose to his feet, and, glancing around and seeing the other officers lying on the ground, he then exclaimed, 'My Heavens, is Roelker killed?' or something to that effect; that almost immediately thereafter a revolver report and Lieutenant Sutton was found to have been shot in the head."

She was sent to jail for a few days for being found on the streets wearing furs and carrying a heavy muff. She always selects church steps on which to sleep, claiming to try Mary's ways from St. Augustine's to St. Mary's and other churches.

WORKERS CLAIM VICTORY IN A 3 YEARS STRIKE

Interesting Incidents of a Warfare that Has Been Quietly Waged Since May 1, 1906.

"How many people know that a strike has been in progress in this city for more than three years?" The question was asked by a man who is in close touch with the labor movement, though as a spectator. "It is the fact," he continued, "that the bricklayers and stone masons struck for more pay and against the open shop policy, and they have been on strike ever since. Of course, only in relation to concerns that maintain the open shop."

"Of course," the speaker proceeded, "the employees bring in new men from outside." Occasionally they get an excellent man, but more frequently they take a trade which has partially learned a trade, and who get a union card as soon as they can.

"Those who are not proficient enough to be admitted to the union will not be long retained by their employers. These men are usually sent from the city at the expense of the unions. The cost is charged to the benevolence fund."

"During three years 500 non-union strike breakers have applied to the union for assistance. In 500 instances have the appeals of the strike breakers been listened to and their railroad fare has been paid by the local union to New York and other places. That the people who do the building and the people who are the most benefited by the strike breakers are being performed by union men. There is the Summerfield school, Warner Bros. factory, The Locomobile Co. of America, the big electric light and hospital addition, and the big electric building of the Union Metallic Cartridge Co. which are all union jobs. The union men have given most of the work to the union men. Most of the money they receive will be spent in Bridgeport. The majority of strike breakers are floaters. A large part of their money goes out of the city. At the present time the mason's union can give work to 25 or 30 good men in adjoining towns where building has been delayed for some time. In some instances the union has answered that they could send non-union men, but the response came back that they were not wanted. The success of the strike," continued the speaker, "is due solely to the strong organization of the union and the financial support that sister unions in every part of the country have given to steady the union men during the first few weeks of the trouble."

STANTON HELD; BOND $10,000

Detectives Bring in Small Boys Charged With Trespassing on Railroad Property—City Court Has Busy Morning.

Frederick Williams, the morphine fiend whose case was continued yesterday, was held in default of $10,000 for this morning, departed this city today for parts unknown. He was charged with begging at the houses near Seaside, and with carrying a revolver. He was offered to this effect. He is deaf and dumb and was sent on his silent way.

George Sloum was charged with assaulting William Teller who runs a boarding house in Fairfield avenue. Sloum was employed in the kitchen and yesterday morning he was seen rendering several selections on the dish pans before the lodgers had arisen, to which Teller objected, with the result that Sloum did much effort to get on Teller that the latter was rather lame in court this morning. Sloum contributed $5 and costs to the city treasury.

John Parella, charged with stealing a pair of trousers, was placed in charge of the probation officer to whom he was committed for a period of three months and give an account of his stewardship.

Bonds in the case of William Stanton, charged with assault with intent to murder, were fixed at $10,000. A hearing in this case will be held in a week.

Frederick Shields who failed to obey Officer Dietz when he was regulating the traffic at the corner of Main street and Fairfield avenue yesterday, was fined $1 without cost for the offense. He did not see the officer or he would have obeyed his directions. Officer Dietz testified to the effect that Shields had often passed the corner and had always behaved before.

Thomas Gaffney, who is charged with theft and held under bonds of $25, was charged with the theft of a box which holds the money deposited by the slot at feet for use of the phone. The instrument he had was very skillfully made, and would seem to indicate that Gaffney is an old hand at this game. Prosecutors say that Delaney was uncertain on just what charge to hold him this morning, as he thinks there is a particular statute which covers a case similar to this.

The railroad detectives are very busy these days, arresting trespassers on the railroad property. Little John Feltwell, 9 years of age, was arrested for trespassing on the railroad property. John is but 11 years old, and Judge Foster decided that the reform school was the best place for him. His father appealed the case under $100 bonds.

Frank Brooks, who is a sailor, was caught stealing a ride on a freight car. He was arrested by the police and was held before the city court, where he was turned over to Probation Officer Canfield. Brooks has been some of the worst people. Perry Creek and Boston from a voyage to England, where he had gone to give his father the money he earned when working on a schooner which plys between Buenos Aires, Argentina, and Boston.

DON'T LIKE AUTOMOBILE BILL

The automobile bill, as passed by the House and Senate, is now before the Governor. It is generally conceded by motorists that this law is improper and unjust in many respects and they desire to protest against his approval of the bill. The grounds of protest against the bill that are considered to be most effective by the Connecticut Automobile Association are as follows:

1st. The proposed law is full of errors, chaotic and difficult for even a lawyer to understand.

2d. Civil authorities are just beginning to understand and enforce the law of 1907, and to foist this garbled, mixed up, and incomprehensible bill upon the state will do much more harm than good.

3d. The scheme of taxation proposed is absolutely unjust and one that automobilists will not stand, if the courts will relieve them. If the courts will not relieve them, they will take the matter to the polls next year and see what new law they had a hand in that injustice gets a chance to repeat it.

4th. Various penalties are omitted from the proposed law, so there are no provisions with no means of enforcing them.

5th. There is no provision for reporting many of the convictions to the Secretary of State. This is a very serious omission, as reports of convictions are the basis of suspension of the licenses of reckless drivers by the Secretary.

6th. The provision of the old law giving an owner the right to offer his car as security for bail is omitted in the new law. This is very unjust, as a stranger might have to spend 30 days in jail for the lack of a fifty dollar real estate bond, when he had a five thousand dollar car he could give as security.

FORTY KILLED IN UPRISING OF MOROCCANS

(Special from United Press.) Madrid, July 10.—Prompt measures to quell the uprising among the tribesmen just after the battle of Melilla where forty Spanish soldiers were killed or wounded in a prolonged engagement yesterday are being pushed forward. The governor of Melilla has informed the war minister in dispatches that attacks by heavier forces of troops are imminent and he has asked for reinforcements. A meeting of the cabinet was called and a vigorous campaign was outlined. A strong force of infantry with machine gun batteries will be dispatched to Melilla at once.

The first intimation of the uprising was given the Spaniards when the bodies of the Italian navy were found black over a blazing fire. The men had been captured by the Moorish tribesmen and were put to death in a horrible manner. They had been mutilated and placed alive over the blazing coals to slowly roast to death. The governor ordered troops to punish the mutineers. The battle which ensued was closely contested, the Spaniards finally being forced to fall back to the village of the tribes with forty dead and wounded.

Deaths and Funerals

In the passing of Thomas Farrell the veteran blacksmith who was buried Wednesday morning from St. Augustine's church, with solemn requiem the city lost one of its sturdy citizens. The deceased was one of the oldest horsehoofers in the city and he was regarded as one of the ablest men in his line. He had a legion of friends among the merchants of Bridgeport for he has cared for the horses of many of the foremost men of the city for many years. He was a staunch Democrat of the old school and a gentleman who lived a law abiding life. By strict attention to business he accumulated a substantial competence. His death which occurred Saturday night last was unexpected for although he had been ailing it was not thought that he was in immediate danger of death. He had lived all of his life at 249 Harral avenue and enjoyed the respect and confidence of his neighbors. He was survived by three daughters and two sons, Elizabeth M., and Mary G., of this city, Mrs. Anna M. Spence of New Jersey, and Thomas J., of Yorkers, N. Y.

Sacred Heart church was thronged this morning with the many sorrowing friends and relatives of Margaret, widow of Nicholas Dunn, who died at her home on Cottage street on Thursday morning. The funeral was held at 8:30 o'clock and thence to the church where a solemn high mass of requiem was sung. Rev. William Fitzgerald being celebrant. Rev. Joseph Flecker, deacon, and Rev. Matthew Judge, sub-deacon. At the offertory a duet "O Car Amoris" was rendered by Miss Margaret Cummings and Mrs. F. J. Lennon. After the mass Mrs. Molly Daly sang "Heaven Is Her Home," followed by a duet, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," by Miss Cummings and Mrs. Lennon. As the body was being borne out of the edifice the full choir rendered "Abide With Me."

Prof. Elmer S. Joyce presided at the organ. The floral offerings were many and unusually handsome. In attendance at the funeral were delegations from the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association and from the Shepherds of Bethlehem. The pall bearers were James McLaughlin, Joseph Brady, Patrick Merry, John Heaphy, James Halpin and James Skane. Rev. Fr. Judge read the committal services over the remains in their last resting place in St. Michael's cemetery.

Harrell, youngest son of James J. and Sarah Fanning, died this morning at the home of his parents, 245 Catherine street, at the age of seven months.

MENE WALLACE TO FIND POLE

(Special from United Press.) New York, July 10.—To an Eskimo shall belong the honor of discovering the north Pole. I shall organize a party of my own people as soon as I reach Greenland and we shall find the pole. We can live where Americans die; we shall succeed.

This declaration was made to-day by Mene Wallace, the 20 year old Eskimo youth who, with his family, was brought to this country thirteen years ago by Lieutenant Peary from his home in the Arctic Circle. Mene sailed to-day on the Red Cross Liner Rosalind for St. John's, where he hopes to catch the schooner Jeanie, which will take him to Greenland.

Before consenting to allow the boy to return to his icy home, members of the Peary Arctic Club wormed from him the declaration that he would not carry arms in Greenland and that he would never return to America. The Peary Club fears the lad might seek before sailing what they believe to be the north Pole. The youth is especially bitter toward Peary who brought him to America where he says he received a "cooling."

The bones of his father and mother may be seen in a New York museum. Mene has seen them and his last request before sailing was that they be buried instead of being exposed to the curious stares of thousands. The lad was brought down from Pelham Bay this morning by Captain L. Becroft, an actor, with whom he has been living for the past ten years. The only sign of emotion he displayed on his departure was when he saw the bones of his father and mother. Then tears filled his eyes. "I told no grudge against Mr. Peary or against America. I know more about America than any other country. I shall carry an American flag on my trip to the North Pole. I shall also attempt to find and save Captain Frederick Cook, the Brooklyn explorer who is lost somewhere in Greenland. I do wish they would take my father's and mother's bones from the museum and bury them. It does seem so 'savage' to me."

After the lad's departure, Becroft expressed doubt that the schooner Jeanie would take the lad back. "The schooner is owned by the Peary Club," he said, "and is going to take coal to Peary's base of supplies. They may balk on taking poor little Mene back to Greenland, fearing he may injure Peary. If he is left in St. John's, the Peary Club will have to go there and bring him back. He can always have a home with me."

Mene was brought here thirteen years ago. The moderate climate suited all his relatives and he has for years begged for permission to go back to Greenland.
